Hinds County Gazette.] The law of 1876, requiring tax-payers to call on the Assessor and furnish him with their property lists for assessment, was an experiment. It has been tried for two years, and, we think, is esteemed, by all, a complete failure. It ought to be repealed by the ensuing Legislature without fail, and the old system or some other sensible one adopted. We are not far from the mark when we say that at least 3,000 of the voters of Hinds were not assessed in 1877, and consequently paid no taxes, and it was the fault, not of the public officers, but of the States Senator, was as follows: Williams, tax-payers who were unassessed.
